

ABSTRACT

A multi-phase hybrid reactor provides simultaneous gas and liquid phase high voltage electrical discharges that provide highly reactive species that destroy contaminants as in both gas and liquid phase. Catalytic particles, including various types of zeolites, can further enhance the rate of contaminant degradation.